[94] Colonel Senior was awarded the Stanhope Gold Medal of the Royal Humane Society for 1881 under the following circumstances:—Several gentlemen were proceeding by country boat from Moonshegunge to Silchar, when the boat struck on a rock in the centre of the river. The gentlemen succeeded in landing safely, but the boat had to be abandoned. Immediately afterwards a large native boat with coolies on board struck the hidden rocks at the same place, and all the crew were immersed. Major Senior immediately swam out and succeeded in rescuing six persons, but not until he had repeatedly swum to and from the bank. He encountered great personal risk in venturing into the midst of twenty-five terror-stricken men and women, most of them totally unable to help themselves. The river Barack is a large and fast running river, and, like most Indian rivers, abounds in under currents.

[98] Captain Shakespear was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for saving a man from drowning at Chittagong, India, on the 3rd April, 1890.

[99] Colonel J. W. Smith was awarded the Silver Medal of the Royal Humane Society for having, on the 27th Nov. 1884, jumped into the Nile, near Semneh, with all his clothes on, and rescued a bandsman of his regiment, who had fallen from the rock into the river from a height estimated at from 60 to 80 feet.

[100] Colonel Snow was awarded the Silver Medal of the Royal Humane Society on the 6th June 1859 for having plunged into the Serpentine at Hyde Park, and rescued a man who attempted suicide.

[101] Lt.Colonel Stock was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for saving the lives of two coolies in a lake near Chorore, Bombay, on the 29th January 1886.

[102] Colonel Meysey-Thompson was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for having, on the 4th February 1869, swum out to the rescue of Sir Charles Slingsby and W. Owen, who were unfortunately drowned at Newby Ferry, Yorkshire.

[104] Major Torrens was awarded the Gold Medal of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution for his gallant exertions in going out in the Poolbeg Lifeboat and rescuing two men (the rest of the crew having been lost) from the schooner Robert Brown, which had become unmanageable in a gale, and had been driven ashore near the Pigeonhouse Fort, in Dublin Bay, on the night of the 27th October 1880.

[105] Captain Trevor was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for an ineffectual effort to save an officer from drowning at Rawul Pindee on the 1st April 1887.

[106] Major Verner was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for having, on the 12th August 1882, swum out and dived and brought to the surface a man who had sunk in a fit while bathing at Tothan l Bay, Isle of Wight.

[107] Captain Wade was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for saving a man from drowning in the Medway, at Chatham, on the 20th May 1888.

[109] Colonel Walker was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for having, on the 3rd January 1869, jumped into the River Alipore, Bhootan, and rescued two persons who were in imminent danger of drowning.

[110] Surgeon Captain Wight was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for rescuing a man from drowning in the Manipore River on the 7th May 1892.

[112] Major Williams was awarded the Silver Medal of the Royal Humane Society for rescuing a lady from drowning in a heavy sea at St. Germans, Cornwall, on the 31st August 1887. A companion who tried to assist turned back, but Captain Williams persisted, and succeeded in bringing the lady to shore.

[113] Lt.Colonel Woodhall was awarded the Silver Medal of the Royal Humane Society for saving the life of Assistant Surgeon E. Gibson, who had been carried out to sea while bathing at Duncannon Fort, Ireland, on the 9th June 1859.

[115] Captain Wynyard was awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society for attempting to save a Swiss peasant in Lake Davos, Switzerland, on the 9th December 1893, when the lake was frozen over. Captain Wynyard nearly lost his own life in the attempt, and when rescued was insensible.

"for very gallant conduct before Delhi, on the 9th July 1857, in defending the position assigned to him in case of alarm, and for noble behaviour on the part of Major Tombs in twice coming to his Subaltern's rescue, and on each occasion killing his man.—'Yesterday, the 9th July 1857, Lieutenant J. Hills was on piquet duty, with two guns, at the mound to the right of the camp. About 11 o'clock a.m. there was a rumour that the enemy's cavalry were coming down on his post. Lieutenant Hills proceeded to take up the position assigned in case of alarm, but, before he reached the spot, he saw the enemy close upon his guns before they had time to form up. To enable him to do this he boldly charged, single-handed, the head of the enemy's column, cut down the first man, struck the second, and was then ridden down, horse and all. On getting up and searching for his sword, three more men came at him (two mounted); the first man he wounded with his pistol; he caught the lance of the second in his left hand, and wounded him with his sword; the first man then came on again, and was cut down; the third man (on foot) then came up, and wrenched the sword from Lieutenant Hills, who fell in the struggle, and the enemy was about to cut him down when Major Tombs, who had gone up to visit his two guns, saw what was going on, rushed in and shot the man and saved Lieutenant Hills. By this time the enemy's cavalry had passed by, and Major Tombs and Lieutenant Hills went to look after the wounded men, when one of the enemy passed with Lieutenant Hills' pistol; he first cut at Lieutenant Hills who parried the blow, and he then turned on Major Tombs, who received the blow in the same manner. His second attack on the Lieutenant was more successful, as he was cut down with a bad sword-cut on the head, and would have been, no doubt, killed, had not Major Tombs rushed in and put his sword through the man.'—*Extract from Despatch of Lt.
